There are two ways to embed the widget.

The first way is to include...

```
<script src="https://co2widget.com/build/widget.min.js" defer></script>
```

...in your HTML page, and then where you want to have the widget, add:

```

```

This is not the best way of doing it, as you won't have any control over the size of the widget, and from our point of view, we won't be able to cache the requests as easily.

The second way is much better…

Create an iframe with the src "https://co2widget.com/embed".

This is superior, as you can resize the iFrame as you wish, and all of the caching will work properly.
